The TransLogistica Caspian exhibition is undoubtedly large-scale, with many foreign companies widely represented. Although this is our first time in Baku, we met partners at the exhibition from various countries with whom we have been successfully working for a long time. We also found many potential partners among Azerbaijani companies for developing cargo routes that are still new to us. The participation of well-known logistics companies at the TransLogistica Caspian exhibition highlights its significance in the cargo transportation sector. Moreover, personal face-to-face meetings and negotiations during the exhibition always guarantee fruitful collaboration in the future.

We are very pleased with the exhibition, its organization, and the range of participating companies. "Abbasoglu Lojistica" is a young company, and for us, TransLogistica Caspian serves as a kind of bridge to big business.

Rza Abbasoglu
Director of Abbasoglu Lojistica

The 22nd Caspian International Transport, Transit and Logistics Exhibition has been a valuable strategic step for us. The event brought together key players in the logistics market of Azerbaijan and abroad. We not only showcased our product, but also received valuable feedback, established new contacts, and held meetings with potential integration and industry partners. This event confirmed that the market is ready to embrace digitalization, and that businesses need solutions that bring all stakeholders together on a single platform. We sincerely thank the organizers for their outstanding work and hope that such initiatives will take place more frequently!

Vitaly Biryuchkov
Owner of product in
Digital Logistics Platform AILab

The exhibition was a true revelation for me. I did not expect to see such a wide representation of logistics companies, along with competent and cooperation-oriented managers at various levels. Initial contacts have now been established. Moving forward, we will thoroughly and carefully explore opportunities for collaboration, particularly in ensuring service quality and forming competitive pricing for cargo transportation. In any business, communication is a key. If you want to succeed in something, direct face-to-face interaction is essential. At an exhibition like TransLogistica Caspian, this becomes easy and happens on a large scale all at once.

REFERENCES OF THE PARTICIPANTS

We are participating in the exhibition to foster cooperation between countries and to implement existing agreements. Naturally, each participant has their own objectives at the exhibition. For instance, some are negotiating the supply of components, while others are actively showcasing their developments in road construction and logistics. However, I believe the overall goals of participating in the exhibition are shared by all – to sign new agreements, establish business connections, and find potential partners.

Lyubov Agalova

General Director of the Research Institute Transtekhnika (Belarus)

Our sector is highly competitive, and to remain relevant, effective marketing strategies are essential. One of the key areas in this regard is our participation in the TransLogistica Caspian exhibition. Our consistent involvement in this event over recent years has reliably translated into client base growth and increased profitability. The negotiations held at this year's event already promise significant advancements in our business operations.

Ulvi Ojagli

Director and Chairman of the Board, Sara Logistics

Ikra Logistics, a company specializing in logistics and warehousing services, has been a regular participant in the TransLogistica Caspian exhibition in recent years. For us, the exhibition always serves as a reflection of our achievements over the past year. This year, we expanded our international presence by opening a new representative office in Dubai, increased our freight operations with China, and are now conducting container shipments between the two countries. Azerbaijan has always been and remains a key transit hub for international trade. The exhibition clearly demonstrates the growing interest in our country.

Tural Mammadov

Sales Director at Ikra Logistika

We have been participating in the TransLogistica Caspian exhibition for many years. I believe that holding this event in parallel with Baku Energy Week is an excellent idea. We are closely connected to the oil and gas industry and serve as a logistics partner for many well-known companies. A significant number of these partnerships were established right at this exhibition. The concurrently held Caspian Oil & Gas exhibition expands our opportunities and helps attract a larger number of interested visitors.

Elshad Namazov

Director of the Marketing and Communications Department,
Absheron Logistics Center

This year marks our third consecutive participation in the exhibition. This tradition highlights the invaluable benefits the exhibition brings us, and we consider it a promising and useful platform. It is one of the long-term initiatives that proves particularly beneficial for large and reliable companies. Here, we connect with potential clients and suppliers, and in this regard, brand recognition plays a crucial role. The exhibition also serves as an ideal meeting point where, at least once a year, numerous colleagues, partners, clients, and contractors come together. The few days we spend at the exhibition provide an excellent opportunity for building and expanding our business network.
